Clinical faculty members are assigned clinical duties in accord with individual contract terms. A full-time clinical faculty member would have no more than 30 hours per week in assigned clinical duties. The remaining ten hours are left unscheduled to permit attendance of staff, departmental, college, and committee meetings. The clinical time is divided between direct client contact and administrative time (conferences and report and lesson plan review). Evaluation assignments are scheduled so that the entire session can be directly observed by the clinical educator in charge of the case. Therapy assignments are scheduled so that at least half of each session can be directly observed. This permits the clinical educator the flexibility to observe capable students less (minimum of 25 percent) and weaker or newer students more (up to 100 percent). Clinical faculty members with less than full-time clinical duties are given clinical assignments proportional to the full-time description, above.
